

What I learnt about ...
'making decisions' !

Thank God for Spouses ... they do help keep us grounded.

DECISION 1:

I wanted to create something. I made a bad decision.

DECISION 2:

I had something to lose. I made a good decision.

Human beings fight much harder not to lose something they already have, than to win something they don't have.

We make decisions of creation very differently than we do decisions of loss-aversion.

Can you make an ardent effort to consciously apply greater discipline, diligence, and thoroughness to decisions when you are creating something you don't yet have ... because the biological tendency is not to do it?
